AREA PETITIONS TO ENTER THE CITY

Communications With Satellite To Be Attempted

By CHARLES W. CORDRY
United Press International

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Space scientists will attempt today to establish two-way communications with the giant new Atlas satellite spinning around the earth.

If all goes well, they plan to send the shiny American moon a New Year's message from President Eisenhower for rebroadcast to the world.

The Pullman-sized satellite, which ushered in a new era in communications, already has "talked" back by broadcasting President Eisenhower's Christmas wish of "peace on earth and good will toward men everywhere."

But the Defense Department said that the first effort to send information to the satellite for rebroadcast to earth would be made today.

Circles Every 100 Minutes

The President's Christmas message was recorded and placed aboard the satellite-an Atlas Intercontinental Ballistic Missile-before it was blasted off by the Air Force from Cape Canaveral, Fla., Thursday.

The 8,500 to 8,700-pound satellite was circling the earth every 100 minutes in another dramatic demonstration of America's ability to regain the space lead from Russia.

The successful launching also gave the United States four satellites flashing through space compared to the lone Soviet missile still in orbit. Two other Russian and one American satellite already have burned up.

Aside from the great weight, the 85-foot long Atlas represented an even bigger U. S. stride in the communications field and the problem of putting man into space.

Has Military Significance

Its ability to receive and transmit messages had wide military significance. The Signal Corps at Fort Monmouth, N. J., said it is the forerunner of a "courier" satellite that could deliver orders quickly to military commanders at various points on the earth.

In addition, the Pentagon said, "communications with manned spacecraft vehicles of the future are assured by the success already achieved in this experiment."

Future satellites, the statement said, can "provide many circuits for telegraph and telephone communications and even television signals so that intercontinental service can be greatly expanded."

President Eisenhower took note of the television possibilities. After hearing his voice broadcast from outer space, the President said: "That's one of the astounding things again in this age of invention. Maybe the next they'll do is television pictures."

ATTIRED FOR A BLOWOUT—Actor Joseph Cotton and his leading lady, Ariane Francis, set the fashion in New York as the reigning host and hostess of a drive to encourage New Year's Eve party goers to wear formal attire. The couple are presently starring in a comedy on Broadway.

Weather Report

United Press International

Southwest Kentucky—Cloudy, windy and colder this morning, partly cloudy and cold this afternoon. Afternoon temperatures near 27. Fair and much colder tonight, low 15. Sunday fair and continued cold.

Temperatures at 6 a.m. east: Paducah 32, Bowling Green 31, Covington 23, Hopkinsville 24, Louisville 30, Lexington 28, and London 36.

Evansville, Ind. 28

Orchestra Holds Annual Breakfast

The Murray Training School Orchestra held its seventh annual Christmas Breakfast on Friday morning December 19 in the Collegiate Restaurant.

Ronnie Moubrey served as the master of ceremonies. Ralph Oliver gave the invocation. Dr. J. H. Hickey, director of Murray High School, presented words of greetings.

Joseph Darnell, director of the Murray Training School Orchestra presented the following guests: Dr. MacRaney, Mrs. Joseph Darnell, Mr. Richard Farrel, Miss Ruetia Overby, David Colley, Mrs. Anita McDougal, Dill, Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Gant, Judy Barrell, Mr. Edwin Lacy, Miss Beverly Brontin, Judy McBride, Mary Gregory Charles Cobb, Nancy Bogie, Bob Moller, Ruth Davis, Prudence McKinney.

Cold Seige Extends From Coast To Coast

The nation's latest stage of cold weather extended from border to border early today and continued its eastward march, causing numerous snow flurries and sharp drops in temperature.

Cold air poured down from Canada into the "nation's icebox" at International Falls, Minn., pushing the mercury down to 20 degrees below zero at midnight Friday. At Pellston, Mich., a 25-below reading marked a 52-degree drop in one day's time.

The U.S. Weather Bureau reported the influence of the cold mass was felt north of a line running from Texas into New England. There were scattered areas of light snow from the Missouri River valley to the Atlantic.

There was some warning, however, in the Southeast where uncommonly cold weather has been prevalent recently. Temperatures were in the 40s and 50s Friday night, up about 20 degrees from 24 hours previous.

Rain occurred in scattered fashion from the Pacific Northwest down into northern California and a deadweight to Nevada. Generally dry weather ranged across the southern half of the nation.

Saturday's forecast showed the Arctic air stretching from the Rockies to the Atlantic, excluding only Florida from its influence.

Worst Brush Fire Now Under Control

SAN JUAN CAPISTRANO, Calif. (UPI)—Firefighters Friday night brought under control the worst brush fire of the year after an intensive six-day battle.

Richard Johnson, U.S. Forest Service fire prevention officer, called the blaze, which blackened more than 100 square miles of brush, "one of the granddaddies of all times."

Official control was announced at 8 p.m. Friday night after a crew of 2,700 men halted the advance of several major hot spots along the northern perimeter.

Johnson said, however, that scouting parties would be held in the area until the fires subsided.

Nineteen homes and cabins which consumed an average of 500 acres of dry undergrowth and timber an hour.

Joe Adams, 34, a ranger from Prescott National Forest, Ariz., was the only fatality reported. He was killed Thursday when he was leading a hotshot crew of 100 Indians on a scouting mission and a sudden shift of winds enveloped him in flames, the Forest Service reported.

TWO CHILDREN DIE IN COLLISION—A New York Central passenger train, running 30 minutes behind schedule, sliced off the rear end of a parochial school bus at a grade crossing near Essex, Ontario, Canada. Two children were killed and five other students and the driver were injured. At top, the overturned school bus lies in a ditch near the crossing. At bottom, Raymond King, 14, suffered a possible broken leg and is shown recuperating in a hospital in Windsor, Ontario.

Rash Of Grass Fires Keeps Firemen Busy

A veritable rash of grass fires broke out yesterday keeping firemen busy for most of the day working with their equipment.

Little damage was done by the blazes other than keeping the town wondering if the city was burning up.

Fire Chief Flavil Robertson urged that homeowners be extremely careful in the burning of trash because the grass is very dry and a spark will set off a fire of major proportions.

The grass fires yesterday were as follows:

- 1225 p.m., 102 North 14th street.
- 1230 p.m., South Thirteenth.
- 140 p.m., 213 South Eleventh.
- 150 p.m., Railroad Avenue.
- 435 p.m., 1713 Farmer Ave.
- 525 p.m., 714 Elm Street.

Fire Chief Logan Bland, this morning said "that all of the fires reported were grass fires and that little damage resulted."

Late yesterday afternoon a large tract of woods owned by J. N. "Buddy" Ryan caught on fire and was extinguished after about fifty acres had been burned.

Approximately 150 people volunteered to fight the fire. Ryan said that he wished to thank the many people who came to his aid to fight the blaze which was burning over the timberland. The fire did not reach the large field on the north side of Chestnut street which is also owned by Ryan.

Memphis, Tenn. (UPI)—While sorting mail at the post office here, E. M. Copeland came across a letter addressed to "People of the Moon, Planet Moon, World's Universe." There was no return address on the letter which, of course, was supposed to have been sent air mail.

Would Include Meadowlane And Circarama Subdivisions, Other

A new area has petitioned the city to be taken in as part of the city. The exact boundary will be decided at a later date, however the suggested boundary is from the city limits on South Sixteenth street, south to the Jimmy Coleman road, then east on this paved road to the Hazel Highway, across the Hazel highway east on the Hazel Highway road to the New Concord road, then north to the city limits again. This boundary could be extended across the New Concord road to the railroad, it was suggested, then north to the present city limits.

Freeman Johnson and Howard Brandon appeared before the council on the subject. Their interests concerned the Meadowlane subdivision and the Circarama subdivision primarily, however it was pointed out by Mayor Ellis and others that while such a move is being taken, the city limits should be extended to a boundary such as the Jimmy Coleman road, then east along this road all the way to the New Concord road or the railroad.

Johnson reported that no opposition to the move had been expressed at all among the approximately 90 property owners contacted thus far in the area.

He estimated that 75 to 80 percent of the people of the area had been contacted. Approximately 125 new homes are in the area he said, and a number of older ones. Ninety people had signed the petition which was presented last night. The council voted to start the procedure to annex this area and the Special Problems Committee composed of Guy Spann, Joe Dick and Richardson, to look into the matter.

Mayor Ellis will also check the insurance rate phase of the move to see if the city is obligated to increase fire protection facilities or other facilities in order to hold its rates.

Councilman Guy Spann reported that 37 new street lights will be installed in the recently annexed area north and west of the city.

Mayor Ellis reported that the state had just installed the new four-way stop sign at Maple and South Fourth streets. He also reported on the recent meeting of the Murray Planning Commission.

The gas system announced that it would pay the gas bill of the city hall as its part of the upkeep of the building.

The city will get bids on an electric welder for the Murray Gas System.

The council also voted to allow Superintendent Jack Bryan of the gas system to attend a gas school in Philadelphia in the near future.

The mayor was also requested by the council to write a letter of thanks to Robert Hensley, president of the Life Insurance of Kentucky for the reproduction of the painting My Old Kentucky Home, which now hangs in the council chambers.

The council elected the employees of the Murray Water and Sewer System last night.

An average of five per cent in raises was given to the employees of the system.

Superintendent Robert W. Huis was raised $50.00 per month to $550. The remaining employees of the system and the salaries set by the council are as follows:

Charles E. Hale $240 per month, Mildred Nance $270, John B. Buchanan $300, James B. Buchanan $320, William B. Duguid $325, Lee Roy Barnett $295, Paul V. Buchanan $295, John T. Nolin $255, Mose Pearson $225, Homer Wicker $225, and R. C. Jones $215.

Giant Machine Guards Coast

By JACK V. FOX
United Press International

KINGSTON, N. Y. (UPI)—A giant mechanical brain is now guarding parts of the United States day and night against enemy aerial attack.

The Air Force Friday took the wraps off this astounding electronic machine and let newsmen watch it order a rocket off the ground 1,500 miles away. The rocket passed up a decoy and intercepted a mock enemy plane heading for America's East Coast.

It was a true pushbutton warfare, the mark of how machines are replacing humans.

The setting was befitting a science fiction yarn. It was the darkened interior laboratory of the International Business Machines plant at Kingston, N. Y., 90 miles north of New York City. Covering an area bigger than a basketball court was the brain, row after row of eight-foot panels with flashing lights and more than 60,000 tubes.

Tracks Planes On Radar

Far down the coastline at Cape Canaveral was the Bomarc rocket that the brain controlled.

On a circular glass radar screen with the outline of Florida's lower peninsula imposed were moving white blips showing two planes over the life Atlantic heading toward Canaveral.

Then came one of the few human decisions: The planes were determined "hostile."

The brain asked Cape Canaveral the readiness of its Bomarc rocket, continued to track the plane. Then came a second human action: A young IBM engineer named Jack Coleman pushed a button marked "fire." In wartime, a general would make that decision.

Brain Takes Over

Instantly the brain took over.

It rechecked again the course of the planes, launched the Bomarc and headed it straight for the nearer one—unmanned B-17 drone. No matter what evasive action the drone took, the brain thought it and changed the rocket's course.

Then one final human intervention. It was decided to pass the B-17, and destroy a faster F-80 plane to the north. It was the first time a Bomarc was "recommitted" from one target to another after launching.

Within six minutes of firing, the Bomarc reached the F-80. Had it carried a nuclear warhead and a proximity fuse, it would have blasted the drone from the sky. As it was, the F-80 was purposely allowed to survive though it danced crazily in the shock waves from the passing rocket.

HUMAN MICE

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (UPI)—Dr. Frank F. J. Pigge of the University of Maryland is studying a colony of mice he claims get all the diseases humans do. Ten per cent of the male mice get lung cancer, Dr. Pigge said, adding: "This is strange because none of these mice has ever smoked."

REDS HAVE THEIR TROUBLES, TOO

THE announcement that Russia has liquidated another chunk of secret police indicates it is not all rosy behind the Iron Curtain.

Also scientists have discovered the Soviet military is having trouble ironing out kinks in her missile program. All of us who have electronics trouble, burned out "reduces," thermostats that won't work or radiators that go cold without warning, get a pretty good idea of what a backward race is up against in perfecting missiles and space ships.

Most of Russia's progress since World War Two is due to aid she received from the Germans, plus secrets stolen from us. But such aid, at best, is limited.

Modern gadgets of any type are no better than the service departments back of them. That is even true of the finest automobiles, to say nothing of satellites, or missiles.

Industrial nations like Germany and Japan, with the largest fleets of submarines and airplanes the world has ever known, made such a poor showing in a war to the finish with the United States how can anybody believe Russia has become the threat she is supposed to be in a fifteen year period?

When the announcement came over the wire last week that the Reds were building missile bases in Tibet we wondered how much more our military would ask Congress for? We had to wait less than 24 hours to find out requests would be upped $49 million dollars.

We are going to learn some day that money can't buy security, just as Russia has already learned she can't always rely on electronics.

A government that deals honestly does not need secret police, and the only way to enjoy modern electronic devices is to have enough brains to understand them.

BIGGEST SEASON IN HISTORY

THE Christmas shopping season started early this year and many of our people had most of their gifts purchased, wrapped and mailed the first week in December.

This would indicate trade would slack off by now, but nothing could be further from the truth. This week-end was by far the biggest this year all over the country, in cities and small towns as well.

It seems folks became tired of the sort of figures that had been fed us through the newspapers as the result of the "recession" and they decided to do something about it.

We can't have a "Recession" when everybody is spending money like they have been doing these past three weeks, and there can't be much unemployment when there is an active demand for goods.

Experts tell us it will be early spring before we can tell whether the present rate of economic recovery will continue, but we don't have to wait that long to know when customers practically buy out retail merchants' stocks will be employed to manufacture more goods.

And what is exceptionally pleasing about the present shopping season is that most of it is being done at home. For that's what builds permanent prosperity right here in Murray.

LIGHT, BUT EXPENSIVE

SYRACUSE, N. Y. — (UPI) — A battery-powered television set which is about the size of an automatic toaster has been developed by the General Electric Company, but the high cost of production keeps it off the market.

GE says the really portable TV set costs 7 1/2 to 7 3/4 by 8 1/2 inches and weighs 10 pounds, but that the cost of the 22 transistors in the chassis prohibits marketing it at "an acceptable consumer price."

Sales taxes yielded eight billion dollars to the state governments which levied it in 1957. This was 56 per cent of all their revenue.

WASHINGTON — (UPI) — Both Russia and the United States are working on manned space vehicles.
The Soviet Union is rumored to be approaching the flight stage with a vehicle capable of placing a human crew in orbit around the earth.

On June 16, the U.S. Air Force awarded a contract to three major aviation firms—Bell, Martin and Boeing—to develop a "Dyna-Soar" vehicle large enough to carry one or two men. It would be placed in orbit by rocket, and would be capable of gliding back to earth. Target date for a flying model is 1963.

ORDINANCE NUMBER 325, BEING AN ORDINANCE AMENDING:

"ORDINANCE NO. 182, AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO TRAFFIC AND REGULATING THE USE OF PUBLIC STREETS AND HIGHWAYS OF THE CITY OF MURRAY, KENTUCKY; PROVIDING FOR THE INSTALLATION, REGULATION AND CONTROL OF THE USE OF PARKING METERS AND PARKING METER ZONES; AUTHORIZING A METHOD OF PAYMENT FOR PARKING METERS AND THE INSTALLATION THEREOF EXCLUSIVELY FROM THE RECEIPTS OBTAINED FROM THESE OPERATIONS; PROVIDING FOR ENFORCEMENT AND PENALTY FOR VIOLATION THEREOF AND PROVIDING THAT INVALIDITY OF PART SHALL NOT AFFECT THE VALIDITY OF REMAINDER."

SO AS TO INCLUDE ALL CITY-OWNED AND CITY-OPERATED PARKING LOTS WITHIN THE CITY OF MURRAY, KENTUCKY, AND TO REGULATE SAID CITY-OWNED AND CITY-OPERATED PARKING LOTS AS PROVIDED IN SAID ORDINANCE NO. 182.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MURRAY, KENTUCKY, AS FOLLOWS, TO-WIT:

SECTION 1. Section 2 of Ordinance No. 182 is amended so as to read, when amended, as follows:

"Section 2. That the following described streets in the City of Murray, Kentucky, are hereby designated and established as parking meter zones, to-wit: All of those streets and parts of streets upon which limited parking is now permitted under permit under authority, and by virtue of all limited parking ordinances now effective, and the parking limits and restrictions therein provided are hereby incorporated in this ordinance for all uses and purposes applicable to the conditions, terms, and enforcement hereof, together with all city-owned and city-operated parking lots within the City of Murray, Kentucky."

SECTION 3. Section 3 of Ordinance No. 182 is amended so as to read, when so amended, as follows:

"Section 3. The Mayor shall provide for installation of meters, including curb or street marking lines, regulation and operation thereof, and shall cause said meters to be maintained in good workable condition. Meters shall be placed upon the curb next to individual parking places and such places in the city parking lots as the Mayor may deem advisable. All meters shall be so constructed as to display a signal showing legal parking upon deposit therein of the proper coin, or coins, of the United States as indicated by instructions on said meter, for a period of time conforming to the parking limits of the City of Murray, Kentucky, said signal to remain in evidence until expiration of said parking period."

SECTION 4. Section 5 of Ordinance No. 182 is amended so as to read when so amended, as follows:

Section 5. When any vehicle shall be parked next to a parking meter, the owner or operator of said vehicle shall park within the area designated by the curb or street marking lines, or by the city parking lines, as indicated for parking, or diagonal parking, and upon entering said parking space, shall immediately deposit in said meter the proper coin, or coins, of the United States as indicated by instructions on said meter. It shall be unlawful for any person to fail to park within said designated area, or fail or neglect to so deposit the proper coin, or coins.

"Said parking space may be used by such vehicle during the legal parking limit provided by the ordinance of the City, and said vehicle shall be considered as unlawfully parked if it remains in said space beyond the legal parking limit and/or when said parking meter displays a signal showing such illegal parking. It shall be unlawful for any person to cause or permit any vehicle registered in his name to be unlawfully parked as set out in this section."

Whole Community Is Moved In Huge Reservoir Project

By MURRAY M. MOLER
United Press International
MOBRIDGE, S. D. —(UPI)—The complicated, expensive task of relocating highways, railroads and an entire community so the Oahe Reservoir on the Missouri River can fill to its 23,600,000-acre-foot capacity is about half completed.

Hary Dobbins, resident engineer here in charge of relocations for the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' Oahe Project, estimates that between 30 and 40 million dollars will be spent on the gigantic task.

The Oahe Dam itself, closed for the first time on Aug. 3, spans the Missouri at Pierre, South Dakota's capital city, in the center of the state.

When the reservoir, ultimately covering 376,000 acres, is filled, water will be backed up the river channel nearly as far as Bismarck, the capital of North Dakota about 250 miles upstream.

Filling will require eight to 15 years, depending on river flow. Mobridge, about 110 miles north of Pierre, derives its name from the railroad and highway bridges that cross the "Mighty Mo" just west of this community of 5,000 persons.

When the Oahe Reservoir is filled, the existing bridges will be 90 to 100 feet under the surface of the artificial lake. So new structures are being constructed to take their place.

The new Highway 12 bridge, 5,058 feet long, should be in use by next fall. Final links of structural steel are expected to be in place this year, leaving only decking and surfacing of the bridges and its approaches.

Another new bridge to carry U.S. Highway 212 over the Missouri at Forest City, 40 miles south of here, has already been surfaced and should be carrying traffic late this fall. The Highway 12 bridge cost about four million dollars; the Highway 212 structure about $200,000 more since it is slightly longer.

The Milwaukee Railroad's new river crossing, costing more than 10 million dollars, will not be in use until the spring of 1961. It involved more than 22 miles of track relocation, long earth-filled approaches and a concrete-pierced steel bridge 2,349 feet long.

A hydraulic dredge was employed to pump river bottom sand 90 feet above the river surface to form the railroad approaches. These involved 6,800,000 cubic yards of material—more than contained in many of the nation's larger earth-filled dams. To prevent erosion, the dirt is faced with a three-foot cars-full—hailed from near Sioux Falls, S. D., to prevent erosion.

The South Dakota community to be covered by the new reservoir is Pollock, S.D., near the North Dakota line. The town has already been moved to a newer, higher site.

Contracts have also been let to move the headquarters of the Cheyenne Indian Reservation from a river-bank site near Forest City to Eagle Butte, S. D., 50 miles to the west. This project includes several million dollars' worth of new schools, hospitals and administration buildings.

Other facets of the relocation work include levee strengthening, building a number of smaller bridges, moving a power line and furnishing Mobridge with a new domestic water inlet, sewage plant and airport to replace those to be ruined by the rising reservoir waters.

Dobbins, during a tour of the project with a United Press International reporter, said that the entire job involves scores of major contracts and sub-contracts and has brought employment to hundreds of men.

The area along the relocated highway and near Mobridge's new water works are to be developed eventually as recreation centers. Design of the new bridges took into account the expectation that boating on the new reservoir will become highly popular.

The dam, a unit of the ambitious Pick Sloan plan for development of the Missouri River mainstem, and its reservoir are primarily intended to provide flood control and permit generation of 85,000 kilowatts of electricity for the regional power net.

May you be of good cheer as Christmas dawns... your heart full to overflowing with all of the high happiness and bountiful blessings of the Day. May the joys of this Christmas be remembered very happily through many a long year to come.

Kirksey FHA Enjoys Night

Family Fun Night" was enjoyed by those who attended the Kirksey Homemakers of America program December 11, which opened by Faye Patton leading the F. H. A. prayer song.

The Welcome was given by Annette Jones, president of the organization.

Janet Like was in charge of the planning and presenting program. The program contributed to one of the state goals.

A skit "Mother knows best" presented by those in a modern day home. Those participating were Janet Like, Jennifer Riley, Stella Adams and Betty Adams. Advantages of a family council from the view point of a mother, father, teacher and teenager were given.

Faye Patton led the recreation which families took part and enjoyed.

Refreshments were served from a tea table overlaid with a Christmas arrangement. Linda Crouch presided at the punch bowl.

The refreshment committee consisted of Carolyn Palmer, Judith Hargis, Tom Burchett, Maryann Youngblood and Rheanna Parker with the senior and sophomore girls assisting.

Faye Patton interpreted the total homemaking program to the patrons by displaying as a creative arrangement of the program in the Home Economics room. This display was viewed by no members of the F. H. A. on December 10th.

The parents were favored by the girls singing Christmas carols, led by Janet Like and Faye Patton at the close of a happy evening. Miss Ann Ekins and F. H. A. members.

Federal, state and local governments in the U.S. spent a total of 124 billion dollars in fiscal 1957, an increase of nearly 11 billion dollars over 1956, according to Tax Foundation, Inc.

CHAPTER 10
BINGO rubbed his eyes, with a sudden start, that he'd been sleeping all day in his clothes and that it had been a long time since his last shave.

He moved fast. By the time Handsome Kuak returned, he had shaved, showered and dressed.

"Two hundred and fifty dollars," Handsome said, handing it over.

Bingo put the bills in his wallet and said gently, "Handsome, we're kind to each other before. We've always gotten them back. Believe me, I know what I'm doing." He managed to smile with a confidence he didn't really feel, and said, "Everything's going to be all right."

The partners exchanged a long, silent look. It would have been nice, Bingo thought, if it would have been pleasant and peaceful, just to go along like this, living in the April Robin house, taking sidewalk pictures just the way they'd done in the past, and letting the future do its own worrying. But it wasn't going to be that way. It wasn't a matter of his own doing, it was just the way things had happened.

"And anyway," he said at last, "we came to Hollywood to get rich. And famous."

Handsome said, "Sure, Bingo, and anyway those weren't the best cameras, just the ones that cost the most money. We can get along fine until we get them back."

The doorknob rang. It was not a messenger from Arthur Schlee's office. It was Arthur Schlee himself, accompanied by a secretary who was also a notary. She looked as much like a lawyer's secretary as Arthur Schlee looked like a lawyer. She was that young Hollywood age which stretches anywhere from eighteen to fifty-five.

She wore a neatly tailored outfit which was exactly what the best-dressed lawyer's secretary should wear and yet still hinted that she would look better in a strapless bathing suit. Her expression said that, as Arthur Schlee's secretary, she had drawn many contracts, heard many secrets, seen many things, told nothing and was incapable of being aged, but there was still a gleam in her eye. She carried a professional-looking manila envelope under her arm.

Arthur Schlee introduced her as Joyce Grimstead.

She sat down on the sofa, smiled at Bingo, looked interestedly at Handsome, drew a handful of papers from the envelope and said, "I hope these are satisfactory."

Arthur Schlee said, "As I told you, you must understand. This sort of thing is a little unusual."

"Where we come from," Bingo said, "nothing is unusual." He drew a long breath. "There will of course, be many papers to draw up later. This is just, shall we say, staking a claim."

He added hastily, "Let's get your fee out of the way first."

He reached for his wallet. "Two hundred and fifty. Plus, of course, the notary fee."

"We can skip that," Arthur Schlee said, getting his hands on the bills. "I'll submit an expense account later."

"But something," Bingo said graciously, "for the young lady—her overtime—her extra work."

He smiled at her. "Flowers? Candy? Theatre tickets?"

To his surprise, she smiled back at him. "Nothing. It's worth it to see the inside of this house."

"Now, now," Bingo said, in mock reproach. "You're not old enough to have been an April Robin fan?"

"That doesn't mean I haven't heard of her," Joyce Grimstead said. She glanced around the enormous room. "Funny. This isn't the sort of house I'd have thought she'd have had."

It was a considerable house for those days. Arthur Schlee said, and then, remembering who his clients were, added, "Or for any day."

She nodded and said, "But somehow—you'd think of something more delicate. More bird-like—like—her voice faded into a thoughtful silence."

Arthur Schlee cleared his throat and said, "Well, you'd better look over those papers."

Bingo looked them over, wishing he knew what their legal terminology meant. He nodded gravely and handed them to Handsome.

Handsome looked them over even more gravely. "Look perfectly all right," he said, and handed them back.

Suddenly Bingo said, "If you'll excuse me—I'd like to have a word with my partner."

He led Handsome out into the front entryway, while Arthur Schlee and his secretary sat gazing at the magnificence of what had been the April Robin house.

"Listen, Handsome," Bingo hissed. "We've got to do this big or not at all." He handed over what was nearly half of the remaining bankroll. "Just a few blocks up the street—and make it fast."

Handsome made the "okay" sign and said, "I'll bring it in the back way."

Bingo came back, sat down, smiled and said, "Nothing to do with this. Can't think of everything, though. Just some important chemicals to be picked up."

Arthur Schlee said, "I've been giving considerable thought to our problem. Regarding the ownership of the house—"

"Please," Bingo said. "Let's talk about it later. It's going to be an easy problem to settle, one way or another." He turned on his worst smile and said, "I know you're a lawyer, but I don't want to pay you for it. As my good friend, Leo Henkin, we wouldn't have a better lawyer."

He spotted Arthur Schlee casting a surreptitious glance at his watch, and said, "In fact, old Leo Henkin himself should be dropping in any minute. And, of course, our—"

He hesitated. Somehow he didn't want to use the word "property"—"The young lady."

There was a slight but awkward silence. Joyce Grimstead broke it, glancing again around the room and saying, "This place must be huge! Rooms and rooms! And all the murders—"

She paused and said, "I guess I shouldn't have mentioned this."

"Why not?" Bingo said. "They happened. Would you like me to show you the room where the housekeeper was murdered?"

She said, "Oh!" and turned a little pale.

"I can't show you where Mr. Julien Lattimer was murdered," Bingo went on amiably, "because no one seems to know."

Arthur Schlee opened his mouth, drew in a breath, and shut it again.

"Or," Bingo said, finishing it for him, "if he was."

He felt a little relieved at hearing Handsome stirring around in the kitchenette. The front doorknob rang, and Handsome came in through the kitchen door and said, "I'll get it."

"Well," Leo Henkin's voice boomed from the doorway. "So this is the house itself!" He came on into the living room, taking up an amazing amount of space for so small a man. "And Leo Henkin's good friend Arthur Schlee, looking after my good friends of the International Photo, Motion Picture and Television Corp. of America!" He beamed at everybody, sat down in the center of one of the divanettes, and said, "Well, where's the young lady?"

"She'll be here any minute," Bingo said.

Leo Henkin said, "Now, don't you think you ought to tell your old friend Leo Henkin just what you plan to do with this rare jewel?"

"In a day or two," Bingo said as nonchalantly as he could. "In a few days any number of things could happen, but he didn't want to think about them now. He searched his mind for a quick quote and said, "A rare jewel deserves a perfect setting."

"When you're ready," Leo Henkin said, beaming. "When you're ready. Remember, there's nothing old Leo Henkin can't do for you."

Bingo has to brace himself and face the question "What-over DID happen to April Robin?" as the story continues

"ORDINANCE NO. 182, AN ORDINANCE RELATING TO TRAFFIC AND REGULATING THE USE OF PUBLIC STREETS AND HIGHWAYS OF THE CITY OF MURRAY, KENTUCKY, PROVIDING FOR THE INSTALLATION, REGULATION AND CONTROL OF THE USE OF PARKING METERS AND PARKING ZONES; AUTHORIZING A METHOD OF PAYMENT FOR PARKING METERS AND THE INSTALLATION THEREOF EXCLUSIVELY FROM THE RECEIPTS OBTAINED FROM THEIR OPERATION; PROVIDING FOR ENFORCEMENT AND PENALTY FOR VIOLATION THEREOF AND PROVIDING THAT INVALIDITY OF PART SHALL NOT AFFECT THE VALIDITY OF REMAINDER."

SO AS TO INCLUDE ALL CITY-OWNED AND CITY-OPERATED PARKING LOTS WITHIN THE CITY OF MURRAY, KENTUCKY, AND TO REGULATE SAID CITY-OWNED AND CITY-OPERATED PARKING LOTS AS PROVIDED IN SAID ORDINANCE NO. 182.

BE IT ORDAINED BY THE COMMON COUNCIL OF THE CITY OF MURRAY, KENTUCKY, AS FOLLOWS, TO-WIT:

SECTION 1. Section 2 of Ordinance No. 182 is amended so as to read, when amended, as follows:

"Section 2. That the following described streets in the City of Murray, Kentucky, are hereby designated and established as parking meter zones, to-wit: All of those streets and parts of streets upon which limited parking is now permitted under existing ordinance, and by virtue of all limited parking ordinances now effective, and the parking limits and restrictions therein provided are hereby incorporated in this ordinance for all uses and purposes applicable to the conditions, terms, and enforcement hereof, together with all city-owned and city-operated parking lots within the City of Murray, Kentucky."

SECTION 3. Section 3 of Ordinance No. 182 is amended so as to read, when so amended, as follows:

"Section 3. The Mayor shall provide for installation of meters, including curb or street marking lines, regulation and operation thereof, and shall cause said meters to be maintained in good workable condition. Meters shall be placed upon the curb next to individual parking places and such places in the city parking lots as the Mayor may deem advisable. All meters shall be so constructed as to display a signal showing legal parking upon deposit therein of the proper coin, or coins, of the United States as indicated by instructions on said meter, for a period of time conforming to the parking limits of City of Murray, Kentucky, said signal to remain in evidence until expiration of said parking period so designated, at which time a change of signal or some other mechanical operation shall indicate expiration of said parking period."

SECTION 4. Section 5 of Ordinance No. 182 is amended so as to read when so amended, as follows:

"Section 5. When any vehicle shall be parked next to a parking meter the owner or operator of said vehicle shall park within the area designated by the curb or street marking lines, or by the city parking lines, as indicated for parallel or diagonal parking, and upon entering said parking space, shall immediately deposit in said meter the proper coin, or coins, of the United States as indicated by instructions on said meter. It shall be unlawful for any person to fail to park within said designated areas, or fail or neglect to so deposit the proper coin, or coins."

Whole Community Is Moved In Huge Reservoir Project

By MURRAY M. MOLER
United Press International

MOBRIDGE, S. D. —(UPI)—The complicated, expensive task of relocating highways, railroads and an entire community so the Oahe Reservoir on the Missouri River can fill to its 23,600,000 acre-foot capacity is about half completed.

Hary Dobbins, resident engineer here in charge of relocations for the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers' Oahe Project, estimates that between 30 and 40 million dollars will be spent on the gigantic task.

The Oahe Dam itself, closed for the first time on Aug. 3, spans the Missouri at Pierre, South Dakota's capital city, in the center of the state.

When the reservoir, ultimately covering 376,000 acres, is filled, water will be backed up the river channel nearly as far as Bismarck, the capital of North Dakota about 250 miles upstream. Filling will require eight to 15 years, depending on river flow. Mobridge, about 110 miles north of Pierre, derives its name from the railroad and highway bridges that cross the "Mighty Mo" just west of this community of 5,000 persons.

When the Oahe Reservoir is filled, the existing bridges will be 90 to 100 feet under the surface of the artificial lake. So new structures are being constructed to take their place.

The new Highway 12 bridge, 5,058 feet long, should be in use by next fall. Final links of structural steel are expected to be in place this year, leaving only decking and surfacing of the bridges and its approaches.

Another new bridge to carry U.S. Highway 212 over the Missouri at Forest City, 40 miles south of here, has already been surfaced and should be carrying traffic late this fall. The Highway 12 bridge cost about four million dollars; the Highway 212 structure about $200,000 more since it is slightly longer.

The Milwaukee Railroad's new river crossing, costing more than 10 million dollars, will not be in use until the spring of 1961. It involved more than 22 miles of track relocation, long earth-filled approaches and a concrete-pierced steel bridge 2,349 feet long.

A hydraulic dredge was employed to pump river bottom sand 90 feet above the river surface to form the railroad approaches. These involved 6,800,000 cubic yards of material—more than contained in many of the nation's largest earth-filled dams. To prevent erosion, the dirt is faced with a three-foot cars-full—hailed from near Sioux Falls, S. D., to prevent erosion.

The South Dakota community to be covered by the new reservoir is Pollock, S.D., near the North Dakota line. The town has already been moved to a newer, higher site.

Contracts have also been let to move the headquarters of the Cheyenne Indian Reservation from a river-bank site near Forest City to Eagle Butte, S. D., 50 miles to the west. This project includes several million dollars' worth of new schools, hospitals and administration buildings.

Other facets of the relocation work include levee strengthening, building a number of smaller bridges, moving a power line and furnishing Mobridge with a new domestic water inlet, sewage plant and airport to replace those to be ruined by the rising reservoir waters.

Dobbins, during a tour of the project with a United Press International reporter, said that the entire job involves scores of major contracts and sub-contracts and has brought employment to hundreds of men.

The areas along the relocated highway and near Mobridge's new water works are to be developed eventually as recreation centers. Design of the new bridges took into account the expectation that boating on the new reservoir will become highly popular.

The dam, a unit of the ambitious Pick Sloan plan for development of the Missouri River mainstem, and its reservoir are primarily intended to provide flood control and permit generation of 85,000 kilowatts of electricity for the regional power net.

A skill "Mother knows best" represented problems in a modern day home. Those participating were Janet Like, Jennifer Riley, Stella Adams and Betty Adams. Advantages of a family council, a mother, father, teacher and teenager were given.

Faye Patton led the recreation which families took part and enjoyed.

Refreshments were served from a tea table overlaid with a Christmas arrangement. Linda Crouch presided at the punch bowl.

The refreshment committee consisted of Carolyn Paimier, Judith Hagler, Tom Burchett, Marilyn Youngblood and Rhonda Parker with the senior and sophomore girls assisting.

Faye Patton interpreted the total homemaking program to the patrons by displaying an attractive arrangement of the program in the Home Economics room. This display was viewed by the members of the F. H. A. on December 10th.

The parents were favored by the girls singing Christmas carols, led by Janet Like and Faye Patton at the close of a happy visit, Miss Ann Elkins and F. H. A. members.

Federal, state and local governments in the U.S. spent a total of 124 billion dollars in fiscal 1957, an increase of nearly 11 billion dollars over 1956, according to Tax Foundation, Inc.

THE APRIL ROBIN MURDERS

THE NEW MYSTERY By CRAIG RICE and ED McBAIN

CHAPTER 20

DINGO RIGGS coughed, with a sudden start, that he'd been sleeping all day in his clothes and that it had been a long time since his last shave.

He moved fast. By the time Handsome Kuak returned, he had shaved, showered and dressed. "Two hundred and fifty dollars," Handsome said, handing it over.

Bingo put the bills in his wallet and said, "Handsome, we've always gotten them back. Believe me, I know what I'm doing." He managed to smile with a confidence he didn't really feel, and said, "Everything's going to be all right."

The partners exchanged a long, silent look. It would have been nice, Bingo thought, if it would have been pleasant and peaceful, just to go along like this, living in the April Robin house, taking sidewalk pictures just the way they'd done in the past, and letting the future do its own worrying. But it wasn't going to be that way. It wasn't a matter of his own doing, it was just the way things had happened.

"And anyway," he said at last, "we came to Hollywood to get rich. And famous."

Handsome said, "Sure, Bingo, and anyway those were the best cameras, just the ones that cost the most money. We can get along fine until we get them back."

The doorbell rang. It was not a messenger from Arthur Schlee's office. It was Arthur Schlee himself, accompanied by a secretary who was also a notary. She looked as much like a lawyer's secretary as Arthur Schlee looked like a lawyer. She was that young Hollywood age which stretches anywhere from eighteen to fifty-five.

She wore a neatly tailored outfit which was exactly what the best-dressed lawyer's secretary should wear and yet still hinted that she would look better in a strapless bathing suit. Her expression said that, as Arthur Schlee's secretary, she had drawn many contracts, heard many secrets, seen many things, told nothing and was incapable of being ailed, but there was still a gleam in her eye. She carried a professional-looking, manila envelope under her arm.

Arthur Schlee introduced her as Joyce Grinstead. She sat down on the sofa, smiled at Bingo, looked interestedly at Handsome, drew a handful of papers from the envelope and said, "I hope these are satisfactory."

Arthur Schlee said, "As I told you, you must understand. This sort of thing is a little unusual."

"Where we come from," Bingo said, "nothing is unusual." He drew a long breath. "There with of course, be many papers to draw up later. This is just, shall we say, staking a claim."

He added hastily, "Let's get your fee out of the way first."

He reached for his wallet. "Two hundred and fifty. Plus, of course, the notary fee."

"We can skip that," Arthur Schlee said, getting his hands on the bills. "I'll submit an expense account later."

"But something," Bingo said, "for the young lady—her overtime—her extra work—"

He smiled at her. "Flowers? Candy? Theatre tickets?"

To his surprise, she smiled back at him. "Nothing. It's worth it to see the inside of this house."

"Now, now," Bingo said, in mock reproach. "You're not old enough to have been an April Robin fan!"

"That doesn't mean I haven't heard of her," Joyce Grinstead said. She glanced around the enormous room. "Funny. This isn't the sort of house I'd have thought she'd have had."

There was a considerable house for those days, Arthur Schlee said, and then, remembering who his clients were, added, "Or for any day."

She nodded and said, "But somehow—you'd think of something more delicate. More bird-like—"

Her voice faded into a thoughtful silence.

Arthur Schlee cleared his throat and said, "Well, you'd better look over those papers—"

Bingo looked them over, wishing he knew what their legal terminology meant. He nodded gravely and handed them to Handsome.

Handsome looked them over, perfectly all right, he said, and handed them back.

Suddenly Bingo said, "If you'll excuse me—I'd like to have a word with my partner—"

He led Handsome out into the front entryway, while Arthur Schlee and his secretary sat gazing at the magnificence of what had been the April Robin house.

"Listen, Handsome," Bingo hissed. "We've got to do this big or not at all. He handed over what was nearly half of the remaining bankroll. "Just a few blocks up the street—and make it fast—"

Handsome made the "okay" sign and said, "I'll bring it in the back way."

Bingo came back, sat down, smiled and said, "Nothing to do with this. Can't think of everything, though. Just some important chemicals to be picked up."

Arthur Schlee said, "I've been giving considerable thought to our problem. Regarding the ownership of the house—"

"Please," Bingo said. "Let's talk about it later. It's going to be an easy problem to settle, one way or another." He turned on his warmest smile and said, "I'm just, shall we say, staking a claim."

He added hastily, "Let's get your fee out of the way first."

He reached for his wallet. "Two hundred and fifty. Plus, of course, the notary fee."

"We can skip that," Arthur Schlee said, getting his hands on the bills. "I'll submit an expense account later."

"But something," Bingo said, "for the young lady—her overtime—her extra work—"

He smiled at her. "Flowers? Candy? Theatre tickets?"

To his surprise, she smiled back at him. "Nothing. It's worth it to see the inside of this house."

"Now, now," Bingo said, in mock reproach. "You're not old enough to have been an April Robin fan!"

There was a slight but awkward silence. Joyce Grinstead broke it, glancing again around the room and saying, "This place must be huge! Rooms and rooms! And all the murders—"

She paused and said, "I guess I shouldn't have mentioned those."

"Why not?" Bingo said. "They happened. Would you like me to show you the room where the housekeeper was murdered?"

She said, "Oh!" and turned a little pale.

"I can't show you where Mr. Julien Latimer was murdered," Bingo went on amiably, "because no one seems to know."

Arthur Schlee opened his mouth, drew in a breath, and shut it again.

"Or," Bingo said, finishing it for him, "if he was."

He felt a little relieved at hearing Handsome stirring around in the kitchenette. The front doorbell rang, and Handsome came in through the kitchen door and said, "I'll get it."

"Well," Leo Henkin's voice boomed from the doorway. "So this is the house itself!" He came on into the living room, taking up an amazing amount of space for so small a man. "And Leo Henkin's good friend Art Schlee, looking after my good friends of the International Foto, Motion Picture and Television Corp. of America!" He beamed at everybody, sat down in the center of one of the davenport, and said, "Well, where's the young lady?"

"She'll be here any minute," Bingo said.

Leo Henkin said, "Now, don't you think you ought to tell your old friend Leo Henkin just what you plan to do with this rare jewel?"

"In a day or two," Bingo said as nonchalantly as he could. In a few days any number of things could happen, but he didn't want to think about them now. He searched his mind for a quick quote and said, "A rare jewel deserves a perfect setting."

"When you're ready," Leo Henkin said, beaming. "When you're ready. Remember, there's nothing old Leo Henkin can't do for you."

Bingo has to brace himself and face the question "What-ever DID happen to April Robin?" as the story continues

Only Hard Work Is Key To Alaska

By MARTIN HEERWALD
United Press International
JUNEAU, Alaska (UPI)—

Statehood is to Alaska what a coming out party is to a beautiful debutante. Suddenly, the tomboy of the far north has become the belle of the ball, and if she wasn't so gosh-darned big, the rush of popularity would sweep her right out of her mukluks.

A record number of travelers visited Alaska during the past summer, and they couldn't help but say "wow!" when they took a gander at her raw, rugged beauty and considered her incomparable dowry.

The territorial capital here, which will be the state capital when admission day is proclaimed in January, has a problem keeping up with the fan mail. Chambers of commerce at Anchorage and Fairbanks likewise are swamped.

Much of the mail comes from school children. Don Bullock, assistant to the governor, suggests that "geography teachers have rediscovered Alaska as a bright, new subject for term papers."

Other inquiries come from potential investors, large and small, and a lot of letters are from job seekers or prospective home-owners who expect Alaska to work miracles for them.

Alaskans are happy to have you come looking for a job or land, and they figure they can help you, but they warn: "Come with an open mind. Take your back with you. If you don't like it here or can't find what you're looking for," Bullock says some folks who want to come looking should first get a general idea of where Alaska's 586,400 square miles are located. One letter which recently caught up with him was addressed to Dawson, Yukon Territory, Alaska. The writer didn't know that Dawson and the Yukon belong to Canada.

When it comes to what Alaska has to offer, no state has ever joined the union with such an untapped treasure chest.

There are billions of tons of high grade iron ore near Haines in the Alaska panhandle. Ralph Brown, an economic consultant at Anchorage, says this mountain of magnetite has a potential value "estimated to be worth more than the national debt." Another huge iron ore deposit has been excavated on Prince of Wales Island where there are good uranium prospects as well.

Alaska also claims it has near Seldovia the largest chromite deposit under the United States flag. The Japanese are busy testing the extensive Bering River coal fields near Cordova for what they hope will be an economical source of coking coal.

And oil exploration already has turned up three producing wells with excellent signs of many more to follow.

In fact, there isn't much you can't find in Alaska if it's mineral or metal. And surveys show the big north country has a potential hydroelectric power capacity equal to nearly two-thirds of the total for the entire nation.

But very little of Alaska's natural wealth is easy to get out. Most of it is locked securely in the earth, long and expensive distances from large and ready markets.

Most of Alaska's growth to date is the result of defense spending, and, in that respect, the territory's strategic position on the globe is its biggest money-maker. According to some estimates, 80 cents of every dollar spent at Anchorage, Alaska's largest city, comes from Washington, D.C.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL — ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Day	Book	Chapter	Verses
Sunday	Matthew	2	1-15
Monday	John	1	1-18
Tuesday	Galatians	4	1-7
Wednesday	John	1	1-18
Thursday	Luke	2	1-24
Friday	John	1	19-24
Saturday	John	1	25-31

The Sandman Came First

She thought she'd wait up for Santa. The sandman came first. But she'll have no regrets when she wakes up tomorrow. Christmas is so wonderful, it doesn't really matter whether you heard the reindeer's hoofs on the roof or saw the jolly old elf open his pack. Like the heart of Christmas, it's not important that we weren't at Bethlehem... we didn't see the star... we didn't kneel at the manger. We can even erase the years when Christmas has found us tangled in tinsel and asleep to God. For Christ is born! The hopes and fears of all the years have melted into one eternal Truth. A gift is ours when we awake to discover it, reach for it, cling to it. The Christ men worship in their churches and homes is God's gift to you and me.
